2026 Session of the Georgia General Assembly

GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

26 of 40 legislative days complete

The 2026 legislative session is in full tilt as members of the Georgia General Assembly work toward Crossover Day, set for March 6, 2026. The legislature has up to 40 constitutional legislative days to consider bills. Those days do not have to be consecutive, and many are designated for committee business rather than full floor sessions in the House and Senate.

Crossover Day (Legislative Day 28) marks a critical milestone in the process, serving as the deadline for a bill to pass out of its chamber of origin and remain eligible for consideration by the other chamber. Measures that do not clear this hurdle are generally considered dead for the year unless their language is later incorporated into another piece of legislation.

Between now and the end of the session, the House and Senate will alternate between formal legislative days, which count toward the 40-day limit, and committee workdays. Committee days are when bills are heard, debated, amended, and advanced through committees and the respective Rules Committees to keep legislation moving through the process.

AGC Georgia continues to monitor previously reported legislation as well as newly introduced measures as we approach Crossover Day. For legislation to ultimately become law this session, it must survive this critical juncture of the 2026 General Assembly.

Please see below for AGC Georgia's primary points of focus at this stage of the session. Additionally, stay up to date on key bills our team is tracking.

As always, if you have any questions or comments, please reach out to us at woodall@agcga.org or graddick@agcga.org. It's our privilege to serve AGC Georgia members each year under the Gold Dome!

AGC Georgia Legislative Spotlight

1. Subrogation

Subrogation is the ability of an employer/insurer to enforce a lien against a judgement entered against a third-party tortfeasor where the employer/insurer has already paid out workers' compensation claims for the accident at hand. The ability to do so is highly limited in Georgia thanks to Georgia's "Made Whole" Doctrine. The inability to do so hurts Georgia's construction companies beyond just the ability to recover workers' compensation that has been paid out due to the impact this can have on a company's safety mod score. One of the key factors considered when a company's safety mod is calculated is a company's actual losses which include costs incurred by workers' compensation packages that are paid out. If an employer/insurer were able to recover these costs via subrogation, then no actual loss would need to be weighed when calculating the safety mod score. As previously referenced though, since it is overly difficult to subrogate in Georgia, in simple terms this means that accidents that are no fault of the employer/employee are directly impacting safety mod scores in Georgia. Given that these scores can directly impact a company's ability to successfully bid and receive jobs, it is clear change is needed.

Status Update: Two weeks ago, House Bill 1355 was introduced by Representative Bill Werkheiser. This bill was produced by the State Board of Worker's Compensation and their advocacy partners at the Capitol. We are in contact with these partners and are happy to report this legislation seeks to provide relief for a monumental pain point many construction companies currently have. As detailed above, accidents that are no fault of the employer/employee are negatively impacting construction companies' safety mod ratings due to their inability to subrogate in Georgia. This legislation addresses this issue by mandating that safety modification formulas for the state of Georgia cannot include "not at fault" multi-vehicle accidents in their calculation. It also stipulates that no insurance surcharges will be added and no policies will be cancelled or fail to be renewed because of "not at fault" multi-vehicle accidents. However, the bill was recently pulled from the House Labor and Industry Committee meeting agenda where the bill was first heard. This was a disappointing development given the importance of this legislation coupled with the fact that members of the committee shared their positive opinions of the bill. Our team was informed this decision stemmed from the fact that the advocates representing the trial attorneys at the Capitol take issue with language in the bill regarding return-to-work timelines. Representative Werkheiser, who serves as both the bill's sponsor and the chairman of the House Industry and Labor committee, will decide how to move forward in the coming days. If Chairman Werkheiser continues to push this legislation, it may have to take an unconventional route to cross the finish line given the quickly approaching Crossover requirement.

2. The Education and Workforce Strategy Act

Last week, Representative Matthew Gambill introduced House Bill 1302, which encompasses Governor Kemp's Education and Workforce Strategy Act. This legislation builds upon the "Top State for Talent" initiative both Governor Kemp and Representative Gambill have championed the last few sessions. This is a lengthy bill which continues the trend of Georgia presenting a unified statewide workforce plan. AGC Georgia supports this initiative and applauds the Governor and his office for continuing this important initiative. Key highlights of this bill include opening High Demand Apprenticeship Program funding to "pre-apprentices" expanding the pool of individuals able to utilize this funding, moving certain apprenticeship program oversight from the federal Department of Labor to the Technical College System of Georgia, and creating Georgia's Office of Education and Workforce Strategy (GOEWS).

Status Update: This legislation was committed to the House Education committee upon being dropped. On February 23 this bill was heard in the Education Policy & Innovation Subcommittee. Having heard from our skilled trades membership who run apprenticeship programs, there were concerns regarding a small portion of the bill detailing the shifting of apprenticeship oversight from the federal DoL to TCSG. This was a concern shared by many of our partners at the Capitol who represent the skilled trades. The bill passed out of the subcommittee and will be heard in full committee later this week. However, following testimony (including our own) on the concerns regarding shifting oversight in the subcommittee meeting, Representative Gambill, Mark Peavy, Chief of Staff with TCSG, and members of the Governor's office met with concerned parties and collaborated on changes that will be reflected in a committee substitute that will be introduced in the full House Education committee. We appreciate the Governor's office and Representative Gambill for this collaboration and are happy to share concerns have been alleviated through these talks. AGC Georgia fully supports House Bill 1302 and will help to see its successful passage.

3. The Georgia Insurance Affordability and Claims Integrity Act

House Bill 1344, introduced by Chairman Matt Reeves, is direct result of the Blue-Ribbon Committee on Insurance Rates that the General Assembly convened during the interim. This committee was formed as a follow up to last year's tort reform efforts to investigate if anything on the insurance side of the equation was contributing to the high rates Georgia has been experiencing. The resulting legislation aims to arm Commissioner John King and his office with the necessary tools and powers to oversee the insurance landscape, thereby supporting transparency and fairness in Georgia's insurance landscape.

Status Update: Shortly after this bill was introduced, it was assigned to the House Insurance committee and it was quickly reported upon favorably. The bill must now move through House Rules before it will be voted on by Representatives in the House Chambers.

4. Denial and Acceptance of Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Permits

Senate Bill 447 is a bill introduced by Senator Clint Dixon that strengthens House Bill 812. This bill is a result of the focus on the Senate Majority Caucus to cut government red tape. As with House Bill 812, AGC Georgia supports this legislation as it promotes transparency, efficiency, and fairness in the permitting process.

Status Update: This legislation has passed out of the Senate State and Local Government committee via committee sub. It must move through Senate rules prior to a vote in the Senate Chambers.

2026 Session Core Initiatives

Construction Workforce Development Funding

1) K-12 Funding: During the 2025 session, AGC Georgia was instrumental in securing $1M in the base budget for construction workforce development. Traditionally our request was a line-item budget item, but we were appreciative of legislative support that added our request in the state's base budget. This shows a clear nod of approval from the General Assembly and acknowledges leaderships understanding of the clear return on investment. In 2026, we are monitoring the status of this base budget request and working to secure $1M.

As with each year, there will be many groups advocating for funding in the budget, but given our track record, and the good news the 2025 session brought, we are optimistic. Since the passage of the CONNECT Act in 2018, (Creating Opportunities Needed Now to Expand Credentialed Training) the $1M in funding secured during the 2025 session marked the seventh straight year AGC Georgia secured funding in the appropriations budget for construction industry workforce development programs.

Status Update: We are connecting with key legislators throughout the House Appropriations process and understand there is no plan as of right now to remove the K-12 funding from the budget. We have also been assured that Governor Kemp's proposed FY 27 Budget does not remove our funding. However, we have been cautioned to monitor the appropriations process closely as the 2026 session progresses to ensure this does not change due to possible funding cuts as a result of budget cuts at the federal level.

2) Apprenticeship Funding: The workforce shortage is an alarming reality for all industries across Georgia. However, there are state-led initiatives in place bearing fruit that we believe can help address this issue. The High Demand Apprenticeship Program (HDAP) (formerly the High Demand Career Initiative) resulted in $720,000 of a total source of $1.1M allocated for 72 construction apprentices in 2024. We are waiting for final statistics from calendar year 2025.

Although the HDAP is a step in the right direction in its current state, increased apprenticeship funding is still a massive need for our state. AGC Georgia recognizes the capabilities of the HDAP and we will push for increased funding. As a program that aims to promote workforce development for all industries, and as a program that is showing proven results for construction, we are posing the question . . . What could this program achieve for Georgia if it were funded at a much higher level? In our eyes, increased funding could be a tremendous leap forward in addressing one of Georgia's largest issues.

Status Update: Alongside a coalition of other interested stakeholders, we are talking with both the House and Senate Education Chairmen for the Appropriations Committees. Chairman Rep. Mark Newton and Chairman Sen. Billy Hickman are encouraged by the coalition and continue pursuing this initiative. We have spoken with members of both the House and Senate Subcommittees for Appropriations, and this funding initiative has been received positively across the board. The current request is for the House to add $500,000 in funding to their proposed budget, with hopes that the Senate will match this addition resulting in $1,000,000 added for HDAP funding. If all goes to plan, this will result in the funding doubling from $1 million to $2 million.

Tort Reform Follow Up

Tort Reform took main stage last year with passage and signage of Governor Kemp's package that included Senate Bills 68 and 69. Legislators in both bodies, Governor Kemp and his team, and interested stakeholders spent the entirety of last session advocating for comprehensive change to this area of Georgia law. After a session packed with heated debate, SB 68, which included the bulk of the proposed changes, narrowly passed in the House with 91 votes in its favor (1 vote above the magic number of 90). While it was widely theorized this topic would be in the spotlight in 2026, this has not been the case. If not this year, expect this topic to resurface in future sessions.

Status Update: One of the most surprising developments of the 2026 Session is how quiet things are on the tort reform front. It was expected that, just like the last time comprehensive tort reform was passed in Georgia in the early 2000's, opponents of the bill would immediately try to peel back the tort reform laws. However, so far this has not been the case. This could be attributed to the fact that it is an election year at the Capitol and legislators may be wary of reopening the legislative Pandora's box that tort reform presents. We will continue to monitor for any new legislation on this front.

Private Plan Review & Inspection

At the end of the 2025 session, homebuilder advocates dropped HB 812 which revolves around permitting. AGC Georgia supports the residential building community pursuing this legislation. Recently, we've heard from members in various regions of Georgia who have encountered issues with private plan review and inspection processes. With the homebuilder group opening the door to the permitting conversation at the Capitol, we opened talks with the engineers and other interested parties about introducing a bill in the Senate to compliment HB 812 in the House. The main goal with this potential legislation is to ensure once a contractor has paid the premium to trigger private plan review and inspection by a third-party licensed architect or engineer, the municipalities cannot come out and re-inspect, thereby stalling progress.

Status Update: Talks have been held with key legislators who sit on the House Governmental Affairs committee to comb through HB 812. With a committee substitute in play, tweaks and concessions are being made by those who support and oppose the bill. AGC Georgia applauds the efforts of the Homebuilders. It is our long-held belief that transparency, expediency, and fairness are crucial in the inspection and permitting process. This bill has yet to be heard in the House Governmental Affairs committee, but it must pass out of the House prior to the fast-approaching Crossover Day.

2026 Session Legislative Spotlight: Data Centers

House Bills: 1012, 1059, and 1063

Senate Bills: 34, 408, 410, and 421

Summary: As shown above, 7 bills are focused on data centers. SB 34 is a carryover bill from 2025 and the other six have all been introduced in recent days. A study performed by University of Georgia's Carl Vinson Institute created a lot of conversation about this topic. This study determined that only 30 percent of data centers being built in Georgia are a result of the tax incentive offered by the state of Georgia. This is down from a 2022 report showing the number was 90 percent. These findings have lit a fire under the General Assembly.

While each of these bills focus on the same issue, they differ in their approaches. A few hope to move up the sunset of the original legislation, ending the tax incentive as soon as 2027. Others hope to stop the issuance of new certifications for data center tax incentives but wish to leave the law in place to govern certifications that have already been granted. Other more extreme bills wish to halt the building of data centers in Georgia altogether while state leaders are charged with gathering more data on the centers impact. A few pieces hope to ensure the general public does not bear the costs born from data centers in their personal energy bills. Alongside these bills, there are others that focus on the state and its resource management. This topic is by far the predominant discussion at the State Capitol so far this session.

With this debate comes an interesting proposition. While there are compelling public policy arguments when discussing data centers and their continued influx to Georgia, this is an issue Governor Kemp has already weighed in on. As always with Governor Kemp, Georgia and its economic competitiveness with other states is his top priority. Upon that basis, Governor Kemp vetoed a bill in 2024 that aimed to end the data center tax incentive. It is unclear if this will be his stance again, but it is not out of the question. Given the data provided since 2024, and given the General Assembly's fervor for change this session, will Governor Kemp change his stance if data center legislation reaches his desk this year?

As for AGC Georgia, while we do support the notion that the costs born from data centers should not impact the general public's costs, we oppose any legislation that reduces the chances of new construction projects coming to Georgia. Largely, our thoughts align with the broader business community and the Georgia Chamber of Commerce. Governor Kemp has sent the message throughout his time in office that Georgia is open for business. The data center tax incentive serves as just one example of his message in action. We believe it would be a mistake to cut this program before its original sunset date, giving other states a competitive edge in attracting data centers in the process.

Status Update: As we move closer to Crossover Day, we are seeing more movement on data center legislation. Bills focusing on ensuring increased power costs resulting from data centers are not passed off on the public are moving quickly. AGC Georgia supports this legislation. However, we are expecting votes to be taken soon in both bodies on bills that will peel back the tax incentive for data centers that the state currently offers. AGC Georgia opposes these bills, and we are actively working with our counterparts to stop this initiative that the General Assembly seems dead set on.

2026 Session: House Bills of Interest

House Bill 613 – Public Works Preferences for Participants in Registered Apprenticeship Programs
Rep. Tyler Paul Smith (District 18 – Bremen)

AGC Georgia opposes this legislation

Status: Since this legislation was pulled off of a House Governmental Affairs committee meeting agenda, there has been no movement. We will continue to monitor to ensure that this legislation does not rear its head again.

This legislation provides a preference in the public works bidding process to contractors or subcontractors that participate in registered apprenticeship programs. While AGC Georgia believes it is a worthwhile state initiative to incentivize industry participation in registered apprenticeship programs, we do not believe preference in the public works bidding process is a fair and balanced way of doing so.

House Bill 669 – Capital Outlay Grants that Award Contracts for Roofing
Rep. Steven Meeks (District 178 – Screven)

Status: Currently awaits the first hearing by the House Education Committee.

This bill creates capital outlay grants that would be provided to eligible low wealth school systems. These grants would be utilized to procure roofing improvements for these school systems. The provider of these services would be chosen via a cooperative purchasing agreement, dependent upon approval from the GA Department of Administrative Services. While AGC Georgia applauds such capital outlay grant programs, the concern is that these types of initiatives have led to service providers cornering a specific market in certain communities. AGC Georgia remains steadfast in our belief that, absent an emergency situation, all public works projects above the threshold of $250,000 must be publicly advertised and competitively bid. We contend that any process that would result in only a certain set of service providers getting consideration for a job does not meet these requirements. However, in talks with the bill's sponsor and the advocacy group supporting this legislation, we have been assured that this legislation's intent is focused on specific type of roofing job which consistently does not meet the $250,000 threshold which requires public advertisement and a competitive bid process. We remain in talks with the bill's sponsor but as of right now, we are comfortable with the legislative intent of this bill.

House Bill 676 – Bogus Mechanic Liens
Rep. Rob Clifton (District 131 – Augusta)
AGC Georgia supports this legislation

Status: This bill has achieved passage in the House and awaits movement in the Senate. It has been referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

This bill mandates that if a bogus mechanic lien is filed, meaning liens without merit or that or filed with malicious intent, the filer will be subject to a $1,500 fine, as well as attorney's fees and court costs of the opposing party.

House Bill 812 – Homebuilder's Legislation – Rep. Mike Cheokas (District 151 – Americus)
AGC Georgia supports this legislation

Status: Awaits consideration by the House Governmental Affairs. The bill has yet to be called in committee during session following an out of session hearing. A committee sub has been prepared to be heard in committee.

This bill was introduced at the end of the 2025 session. AGC Georgia applauds this initiative from the Homebuilders, as the legislation promotes fairness, transparency, and expediency from local governing bodies in the permitting and plan review process.

House Bill 1071 – Georgia Workplace Safety and Heat Protection Act – Rep. Kim Schofield (District 63 – Atlanta)
AGC Georgia opposes this legislation

Status: House Industry and Labor: This bill is yet to be heard in committee.

This legislation aims to codify new standards when it comes to heat safety on jobsites in the State of Georgia as well as penalties for those that do not conform to these regulations. It aims to deem "extreme heat environments" as those exceeding 80 degrees in Fahrenheit and a "dangerous heat index trigger" as 90 degrees Fahrenheit or higher. Employers operating in environments that meet these thresholds would be required to implement a heat illness prevention program as well as comply with a number of safety standards when a dangerous heat index trigger is met. This has been a longstanding battle at the federal level for AGC of America. While we applaud any bill with a focus on promoting public health, AGC and the construction industry has long promoted rest, shade, and water guidelines during the summer months. The standards presented in this legislation could impose unnecessary and time-consuming regulations, costing construction companies time they do not have to spare.

2026 Session: Senate Bills

Senate Bill 437 – Virtual Inspections in the Permitting Process
Sen. Clint Dixon (District 45 – Buford)

Status: Senate State and Local Government Operations Committee. This bill was heard in committee where various changes were made via a committee sub. However, in Senate rules, a sub was introduced again reverting the bill very closely to its original language. This bill now awaits a vote in the Senate chambers.

This legislation codifies the ability to utilize virtual inspections in the permitting process in Georgia. It also shortens key timelines cities and counties must abide by in the permitting process. We are in talks with the bill sponsor to ensure this bill does not alter any long-standing provisions in the private permitting and plan review process, but we are receptive to the General Assembly codifying virtual inspections as an acceptable avenue in Georgia.

Senate Bill 442 – Revocation and Expiration of Commercial Drivers' Licenses for Non-citizens
Sen. Jason Dickerson (District 21 – Canton)

Status: This bill is yet to be heard in the Senate Public Safety Committee.

SB 442 would mandate the revocation and expiration of CDLs for non-citizens in Georgia. AGC Georgia's governmental affairs team has been approached by several legislators voicing concerns about this legislation and the precedent it could set for immigrant workers in Georgia. Considering that the construction industry's top challenge right now is the workforce shortage, we are engaging in further discussion with these legislators to ensure no damage is done by this legislation.

Reminder: AGC Georgia PAC

Please consider donating to AGC Georgia's Political Action Committee. The 2026 election cycle will prove to be one of the most impactful yet. With the number of current legislators vying for higher office, it will undoubtedly lead to a shifting landscape. To support the legislators that support Georgia's construction industry, the AGC Georgia PAC needs financial support. As always, thank you for your help in allowing us to promote common sense legislation for our state's construction industry.

POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

Please contribute to the AGC Georgia PAC!

AGC Georgia maintains a visible and active presence throughout the year with elected and appointed state officials and policy makers advocating for what is in the best interest of our members and the commercial construction industry.

During each year's session of the Georgia General Assembly, AGC Georgia is front and center regarding pending legislation, proposed policy changes, and other regulations that can negatively impact your firm and our industry. In addition to maintaining a strong defensive posture, AGC Georgia is also very proactive in identifying opportunities to better the business climate for your company.

We firmly believe electing pro-business officials to Georgia's General Assembly who objectively listen to our concerns, understand them and act accordingly is critical to the industry's success.

Please consider donating to the AGC Georgia PAC to help our association continue a long tradition of being a respected voice in the legislative process. Since actions taken under Georgia's Gold Dome significantly impact the construction industry, it's important for AGC Georgia's PAC to be a vibrant source of support for pro-business candidates seeking office throughout our state.

AGC Georgia's PAC can accept both corporate and personal contributions.
